KITCHEN | F&B

WHY STAINLESS STEEL

Stainless Steel has a non-porous surface, which means that no type of liquid or substances can penetrate its surface

Stainless Steel durable, easy to sanitise and corrosion resistant to various acids found in meats, milk, fruits and vegetables.

Stainless Steel resists attack from meat juices and by the aggressive chemicals used to clean and sterilise them

Stainless Steel has great malleable properties during its production, so it can be customised

Stainless Steel is a lot harder than steel

HOODS

Kitchen hood designs vary depending on the application in which the hood is being used. There are two types of kitchen hoods.

Type One Designed to be installed above cooking appliances that produce laden vapors, such as grease or smoke

Type Two Must be installed above cooking or dishwashing appliances that produce heat, steam, and/or products of combustion

Size & Placement The size of the kitchen hood is dependent upon the size of the equipment that the hood is serving. At SAL, we provide different types of hood designs which optimizes to reduce the amount of exhaust air requirements for the hood
